What is Class?

Miss Smith: What this school needs, young men, is greater effort to achieve a touch of class.

Bruce: That's cool. A lot more foxy girls!

Duane: Wait a minute. Foxy girls don't give a school class. What she means is that the whole school has to have a lot of enthusiasm, as well as reflect some culture.

Randall: You're right Duane. I'd like to see more sophisticated behavior from a lot of students.

Carl: (Thinking) What? Sophistication?

Danny: But how can we find class at school, much less show it?

Miss Smith: I'll leave that up to you to decide. Look around you, and you will find it in the most unexpected places!

So it began—the year 1979—the end of a decade—and the year
“class” was found at PCHS

Cheerleaders Bring A Touch

Of Class To School Activities

"Nothing great was ever achieved without enthusiasm", Emerson said. The Varsity Cheerleaders brought a touch of class to many school activities this year with their spirited involvement. They held car washes, pep rallies, bake sales, and sold badges as well as cheering at all the games.

Creativity Leads To An

Spirit week brought out the individuality of students as they dressed for each day's theme. No one knew what they'd see next! Monday, Halloween day, brought a flood of original costumes — rabbits, Dracula, and grizzled old men. All-day-suckers and fishing poles prevailed on little kid's day. Bobby socks and greased hair showed a 50's "Touch of Class" on Wednesday. Thursday, dress-up day, brought three-piece suits, formals and wedding dresses for a day of refinement. On Friday, maroon and gold day, the seniors were declared the week's most involved participants.

Self-expression, individuality and creativity play a large part in student participation during the annual Spirit Week. Some uniquely original costumes appeared in the halls on Monday's Halloween dress-up day. Below, Carol McNeill, junior, looking something like a Playboy bunny, wags a furry tail. Right, Sandy McMillion's "get up", appearing somewhat out of place in the light of day, is a good example of the kind of "class" one might be expected to have in the hills of Transylvania.

Unusual Touch Of Class

Fifties day, when students dress in Mom's and Dad's old clothes, bring with it the fun of an old-fashioned "sock hop" and a revival of all those "old" dances. Here Jill Abdella, Jane Cassell, Mr. Fauber, Penny Beck, Carol McNeill, Robyn Hilleary, Jackie Sewell, and Debbie Dean learn the steps to a 50's "hop". Note the concentration on the position of the feet, a necessity that was deleted in the newer dances of the 70's. Below left, Cindy Smith, freshman, gives insight to what she must have looked like a scant ten years ago.

Autumn Is Theme For

Homecoming night. Excitement and anticipation were written on every face as the warm, almost balmy evening added a striking accent to the theme of "Autumn". The pre-game parade went smoothly though nervousness was evident in the participants-the band, majorettes, attendants, and candidates. By half-time the anticipation had grown, but the co-ordinators were in a state of near panic. Rain clouds loomed threateningly closer. And where was the photographer? As the band and the floats prepared for their entrance onto the field, faculty members scurried in search of the missing photographer and prayed that the rain would hold back just a little longer. To everyone's relief, the ceremonies were a complete success. The seemingly unnecessary turmoil of the night gives credence to the saying, "life is really simple, but men insist on making it complicated".

Queen Jane Cassell and King Scotty Kelly
were elected by vote of the student body.

1979 Homecoming Ceremonies

Far left, middle row, Patricia Kellison and Ronnie Hall were chosen as junior class representatives. Right, Karen Valencia and Kevin Shaw, seniors, were chosen first runner-up to the king and queen.

A Touch Of Class Doesn't Just Happen

And work they did. Keeping in mind the old saying, "practice makes perfect", the band, cheerleaders, majorettes and football players started practice in August to prepare for the 1978-79 season. The team faced what some said was the toughest schedule ever played by the school. Only hard work and perseverance could get them through games with such top-ranked teams as Poca, Man, and Central Preston. The band was able to travel to every away game because of funds allotted by the Board of Education. This meant practice, to show everyone that there was something going on at that "little school from back in the sticks".

—It Has To Be Worked For

The greater the difficulty, the greater the glory.

Band Accompanies Team To

Muddy fields, pouring rain and bone-chilling nights were all a part of the 1978 Warrior football season. But no matter how unruly the crowd, how bad the weather, or how long the ride to the game, the Warriors put on an impressive performance every time. The long practices of the summer had paid off. In fact, it seemed they were at their best when under the most adverse conditions. At Man, after a five hour bus ride, the team held the number two team in the state to a 3-0 final score, their favor. As always, the cheerleaders and the band were right behind the boys. They accompanied them to every game, so there was always support coming from the sidelines. If the weatherman predicted cold, they just put on another layer of clothes. They brought their lunches if the trip didn't allow them to stop and eat. If effort and participation are necessary ingredients for "class", then truly the Warriors and their supporters have come close to that nebulous quality.

Beauty Is Pocahontas' Ultimate Touch Of Class

Take towns and all that you find there
And leave me sun and mountain air! —Galsworthy

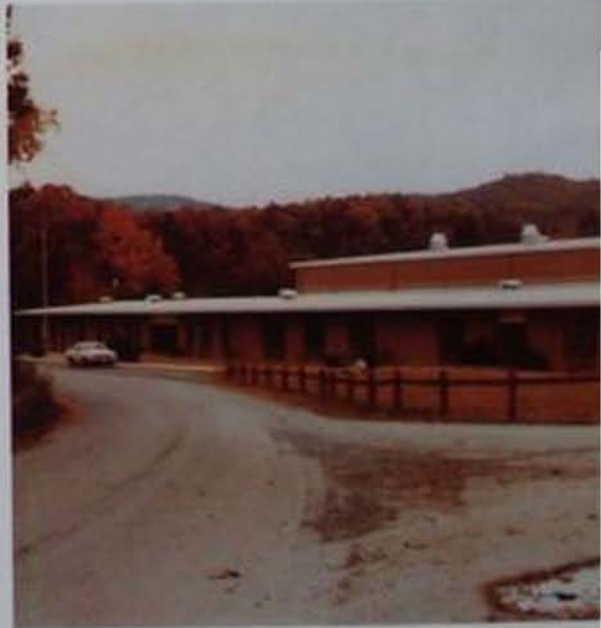

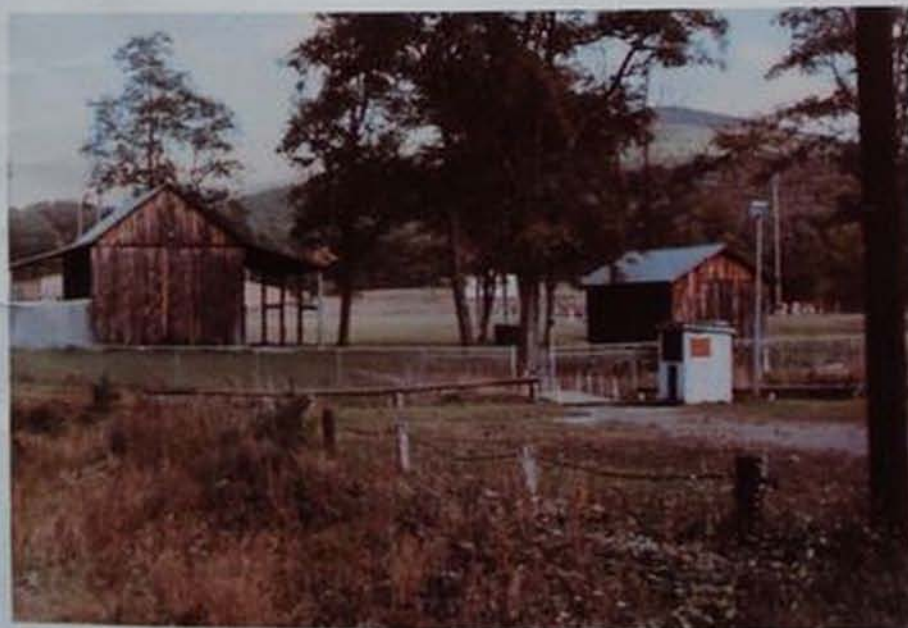

And so the county school administration must have felt when they chose the location for Pocahontas County High School, a beautiful 75 acres in the center of the county. Some of this land was developed into football fields, parking lots, practice fields and nature trails, but most of it has been left untouched for the enjoyment of the students and community. Once a farm, the land has now become a source of pride for students as well as faculty, who view Pocahontas County's beauty as the ultimate touch of class!

Right, The red, white and blue of the flag unfurled contrasts sharply with the colors of autumn.

Program's Emphasis On Drugs

The Huttonsville Correctional Center drug abuse team made their second appearance to speak to students about drugs and their effects. Each inmate was imprisoned due to the misuse of various drugs.

Right: Inmate Billy Wager listens to students questions with keen interest.

Far right: Prison chaplain Michael Shafman made introductions for each inmate. Below: The drug abuse team was Charley Parker, Joe Carrico, Billy Wager, Donald Amaker and chaplain Michael Shafman.

Lower right: Joe Carrico was the new member this year but Billy Wager and Donald Amaker attended this seminar last year.

Students Receive Free Haircuts

Nothing beats getting an exciting new fifteen dollar haircut for free, unless its getting out of class for a couple of hours to view all the bestselling books presently on the market.

Advanced Program Offers

Going bowling, skiing, playing volleyball, basketball, soccer, hockey, archery, and gymnastics were some of the activities that the Girls Advanced Physical Education class participated in throughout the year.

In the fall girls could be seen down at the field learning soccer, hockey, archery and lacrosse. Mr. Winter was right around the corner and soon the girls went back to the gym to participate in basketball, volleyball, and gymnastics.

Then came the long awaited day. With cars packed full of girls and plenty of warm clothing, the class headed for Snowshoe for a day of skiing and excitement. Later they spent a day at Fairlea Lanes bowling.

The spotlight of the year was the annual P.E. Show. While disco music played, the girls showed off their skills in front of the student body.

Above right: Being on the ground is half of the fun of skiing. Right: Tonja Wiley? Many of the girls took lessons but most still had a fall or two. Right center: Reta Rose, PE teacher, tries her luck at ski lessons at Snowshoe on a PE trip. The girls went to Snowshoe in March and spent the afternoon. Right: Ready to show off her skiing ability, Naomi Taylor prepares to go down the slopes. Above: Grinning and bearing the pain, 5th period forms a human pyramid. Bottom left to right: Melanie Rose, Elanie Friel, Debbie Ramsey, Kelly Mullenax. Top row: Lisa Long, Nancy Jordan, Vickie Dean.

Seasonal Athletic Activities

Cindy Clutter shows a combination of balance and control by standing on her head with her legs crossed. This is a stunt learned by all P.E. classes.

One of the features of the P.E. Show was the girls performing on the gym equipment. Jane Hunter Hively prepares to do a backwards somersault on the balance beam.

For the show each class was required to do a class stunt. Second period demonstrates "Through the Coffee Grinder". Others class stunts included Centipede, Circle Pyramid, Merry Go Round, and Skin the Snake.

Jazz Is Focus Of Concert

The West Virginia Tech Singers gave a special concert at PCHS in the spring that concentrated on American jazz, a kind of music that is totally American in origin and content. Their performance was a tribute to that American phenomenon.

At right, the West Virginia Tech Singers perform a jazz number that includes both song and dance routines. They encouraged the audience to participate on many numbers.

Below right, two Tech singers are part of a dance segment that performed a special number. The group is composed of music majors who attend this school in Montgomery, W.Va.

Below, girls' hearts throbbed as this young man with the deep voice did a solo number. On the top row is James Johnson, a 1978 graduate of PCHS.

Programs Provide Career Insight

The Antrium Bureau Assemblies and other special functions provide students with a welcome break in the school schedule. Conduct became the issue at assemblies this year and new rules were imposed. For the first time teachers were required to sit with their classes.

At left, juniors and seniors attend the annual College Day held in the gymnasium. Here, Miles Kramer of Davis and Elkins College tries to recruit prospective students.

Below right, Raymond Soares, an Antrium Bureau performer, sang for a fall program. He did a selection of pop and gospel music that ended with the Lord's Prayer.

Disco fever. Spring arrived and disco took over. There it was, ever-so present at each dance.

Top: Dancing like high school students are Mr. and Mrs. Joe Jonese. Upper right: They used to call those who sat out of dances wallflowers. But now half the fun is found on the sidelines, especially in the disco craze of today. Jane Lambert, Mike Deputy and Billy Lambert view the dancers. Above: The food in the cafeteria provides a welcome break from the action for Barbie Kisner and Jan Ervine even though they don't seem to be enjoying it. Right: The sophomore class used the Warrior cleverly to display the theme of the annual Spring Ball.

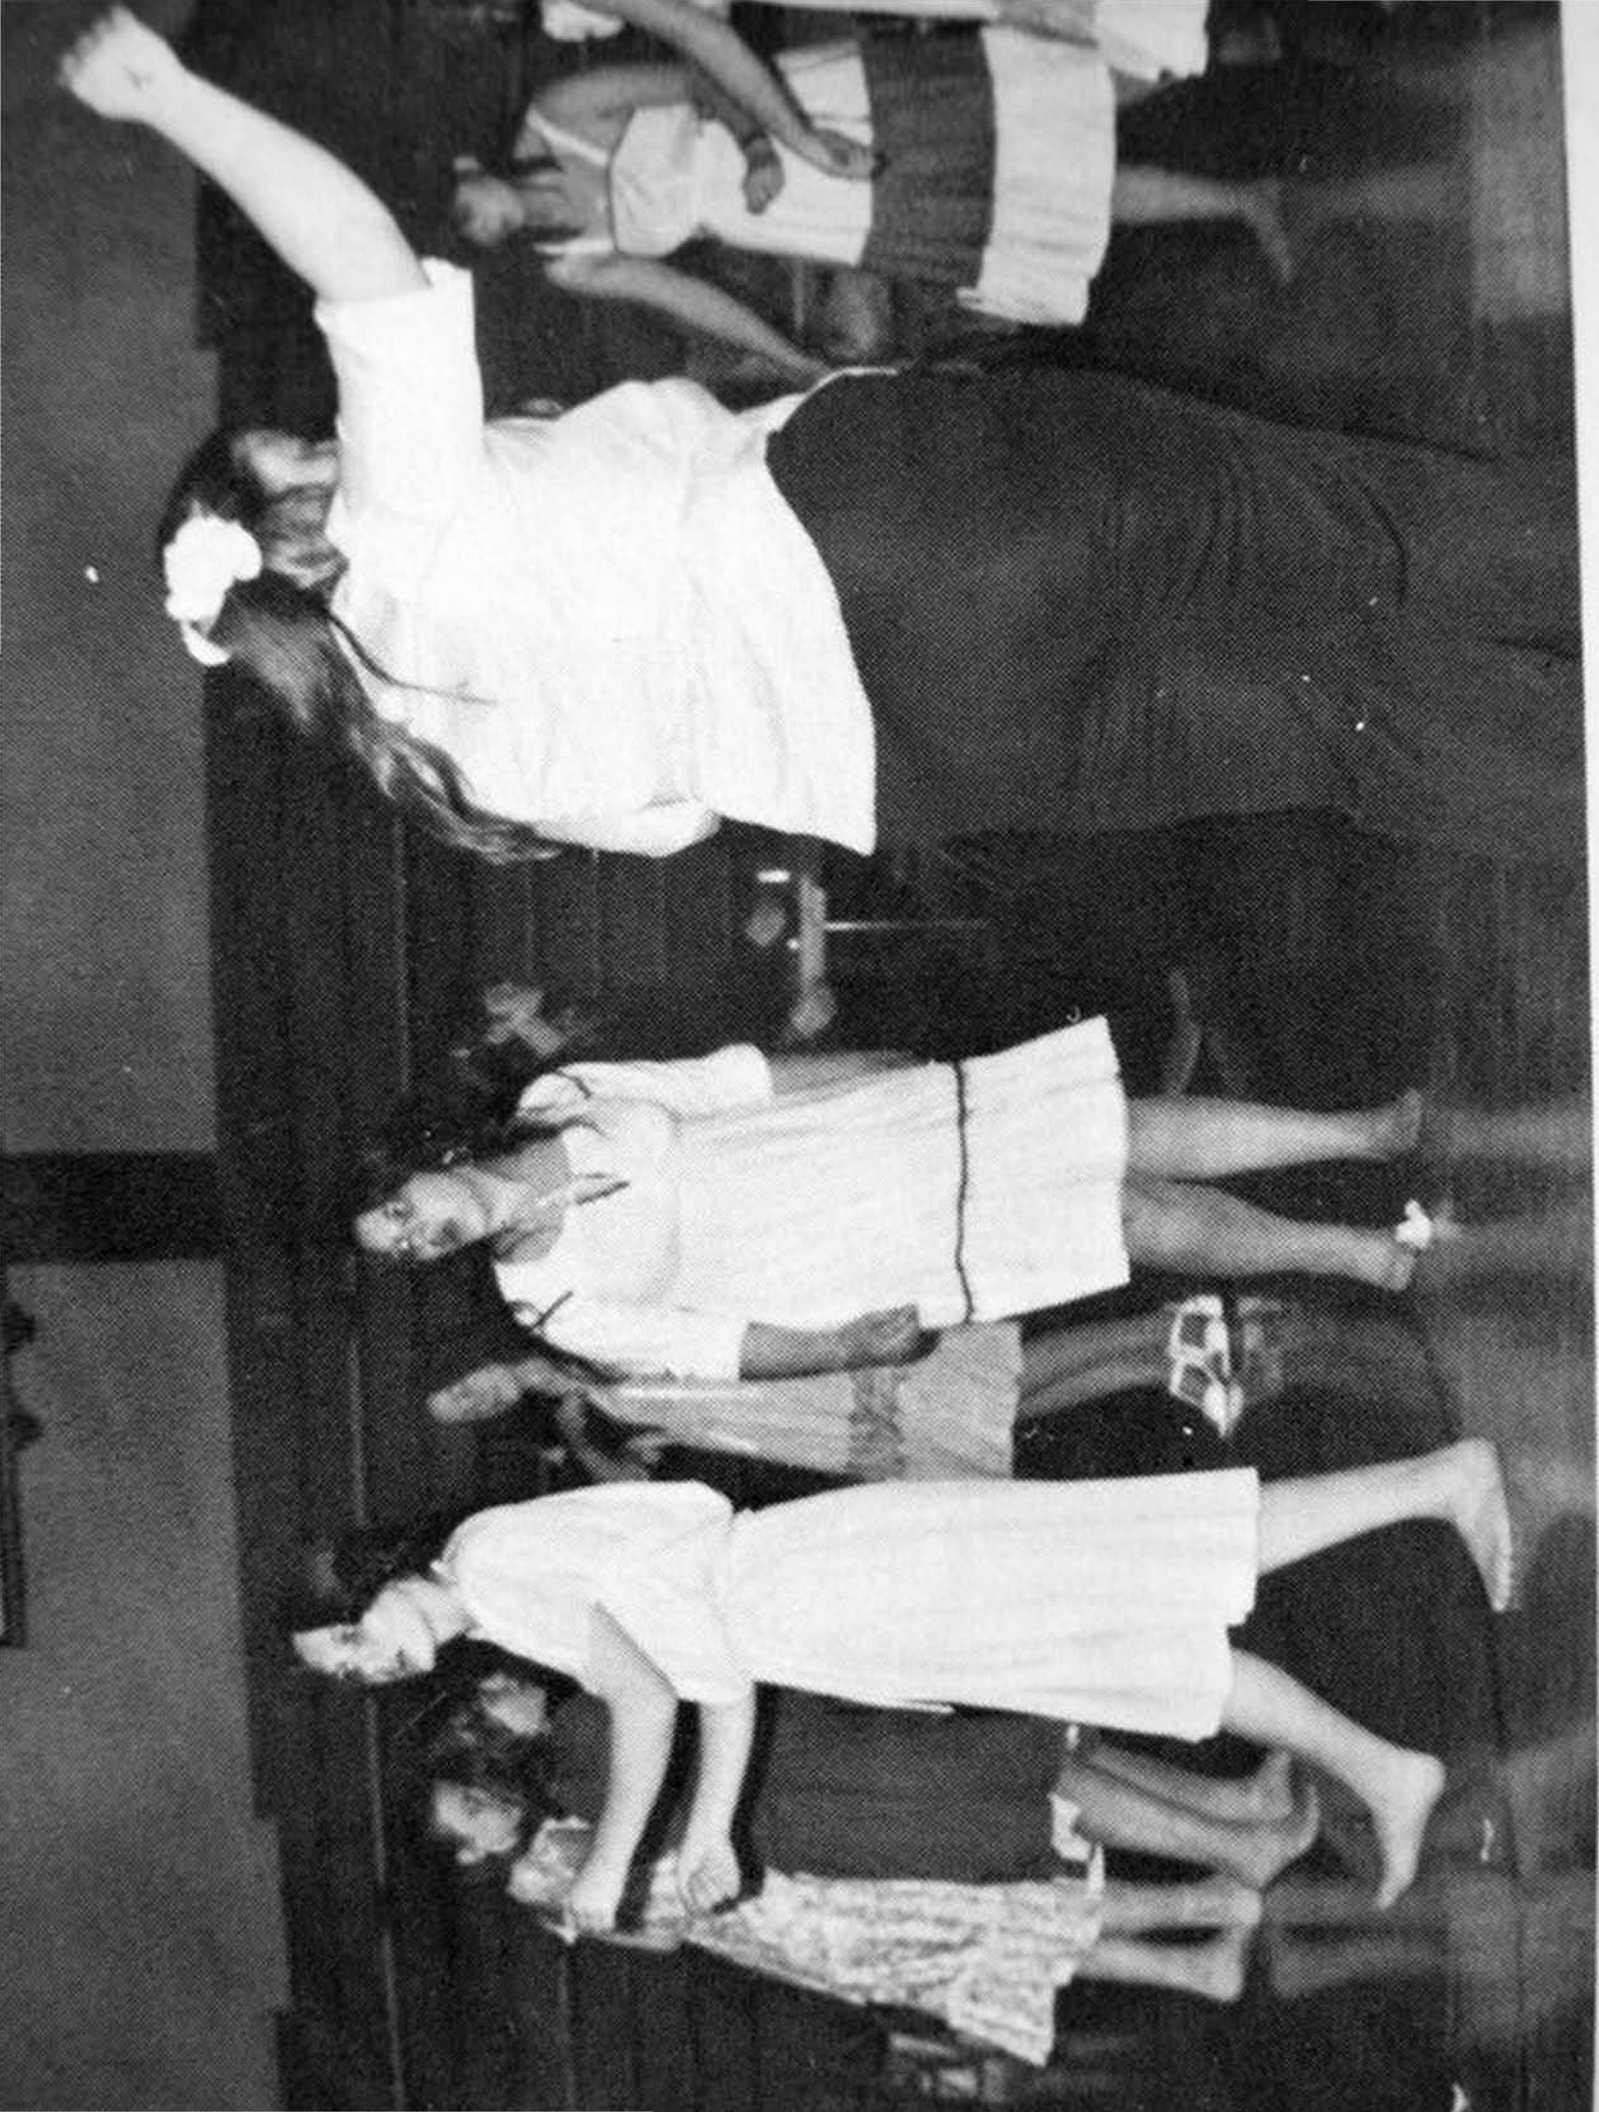

Theme Of Annual Spring Ball

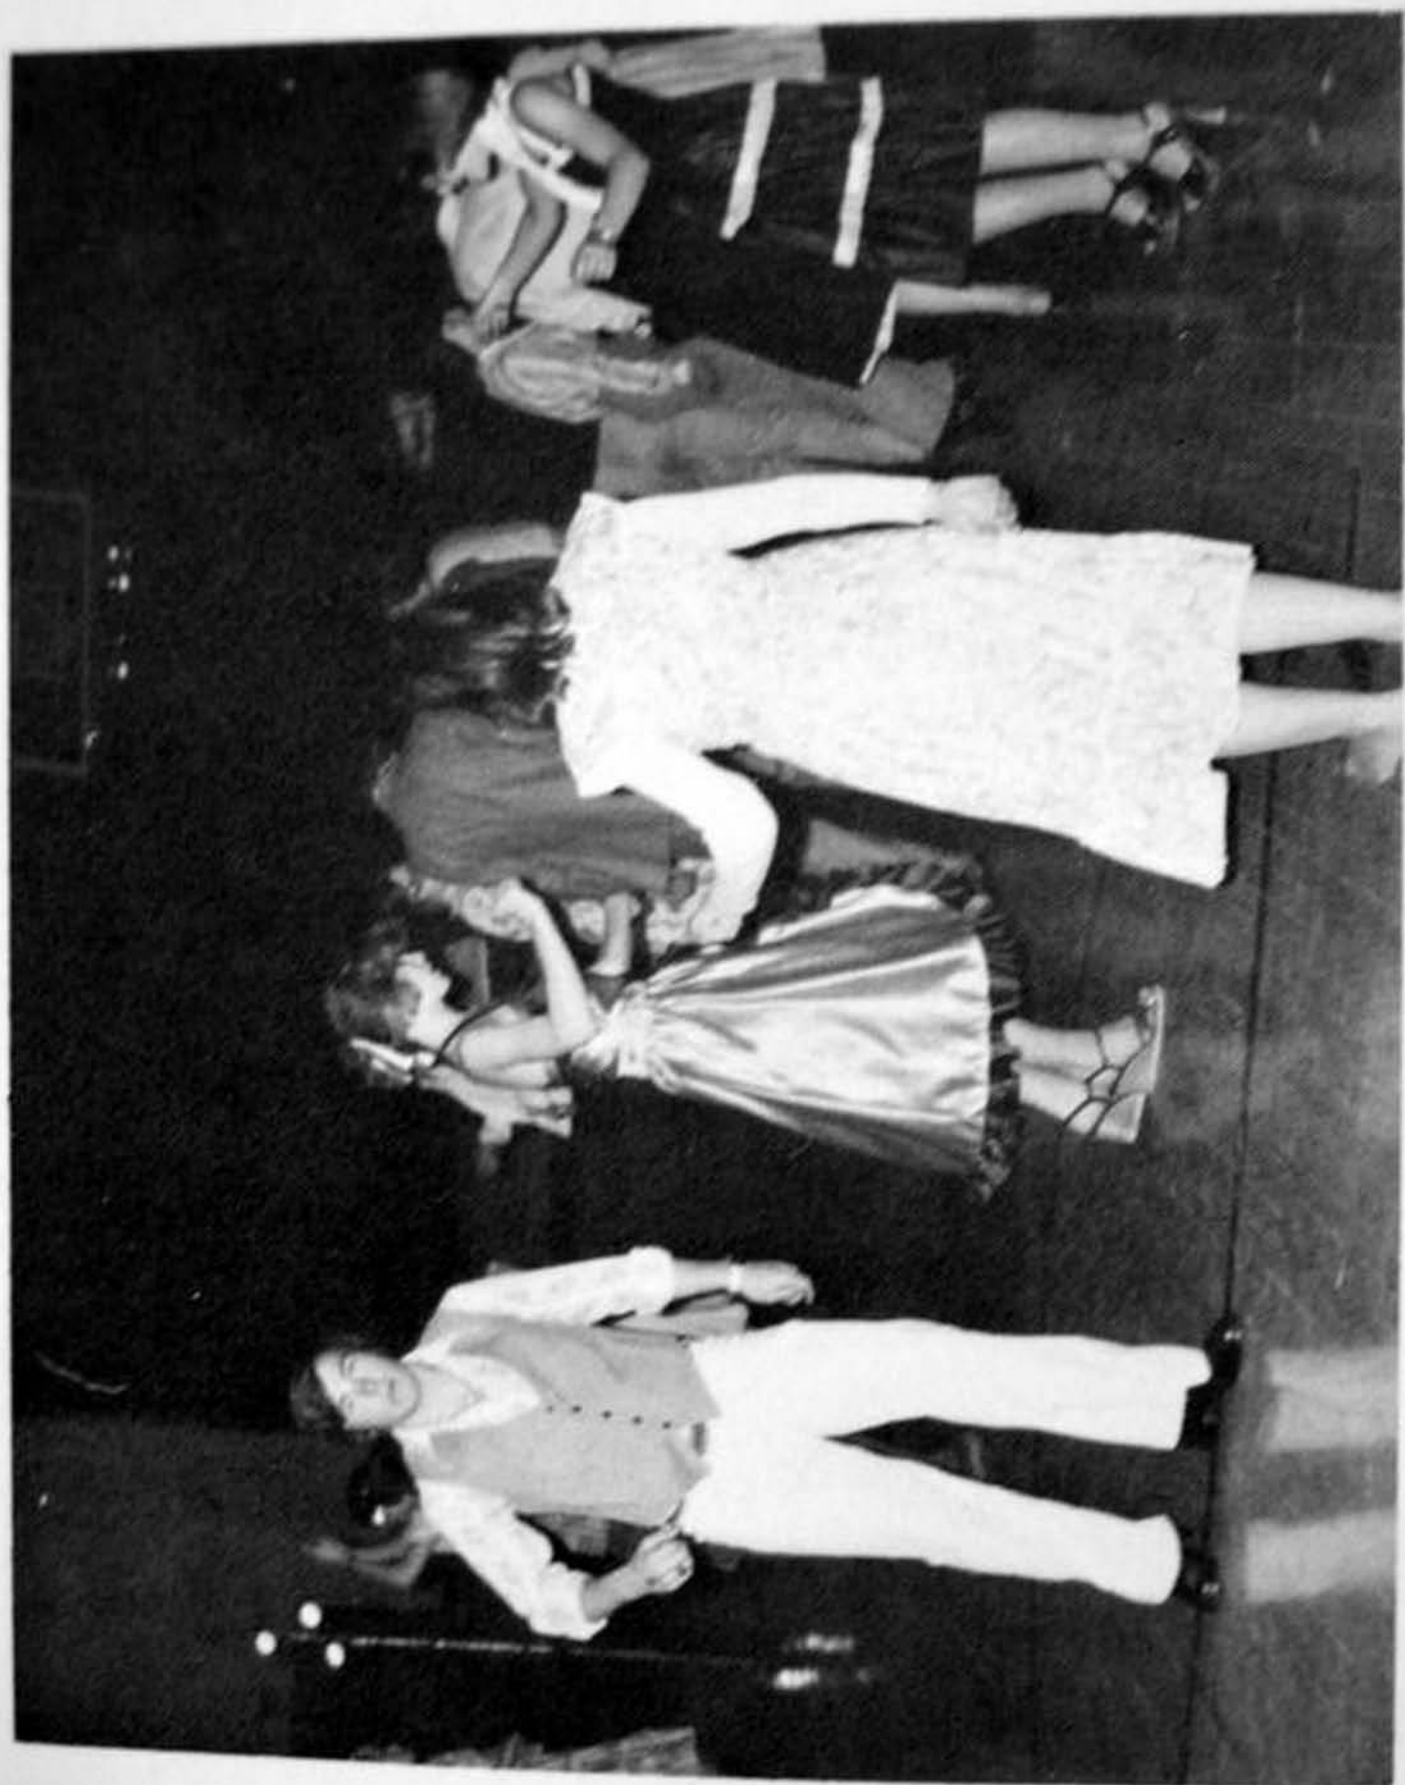

Dance, Dance, Dance. And that's what they did. The John Travolta's were abundant.

English Exchange Students Arrive For

As part of their spring break, ten English Exchange students arrived at Clarksburg airport on March 31. They came with the knowledge that students from PCHS might not be able to visit Hayes school in Bromley, England, this summer. Some of the activities that the English students and their host students participated in were: a trip to Charlottesville, Va., a trip to Seneca Caverns and a session with all the grade school students

Leadership, Speech Activities

Concern for the problems at hand produce future leaders. Those who care, assess the situation and seek possible solutions yield a mold of young people who may determine innovative solutions to the problems of tomorrow's world. Being actively involved in student affairs makes them an elite group. These students of the 70's will be the engineers of the 80's.

Right: Know Your State Government Day representatives were Debbie Dean, Duane Gibson and Anita Oliver. Below: The winner of the Century III Leadership contest was Lori Albee, senior. Lower right: Mike Hogan was the Century III runner-up.

Provide Valuable Experience

A mistake while giving a speech is very often "too embarrassing." It takes motivation and courage to keep making speeches and be consistent at winning. Making speeches takes style and poise, as well as determination to be the "best of the rest".

Tony Beverage was district winner in the VFW contest. Winner of the district Oratorical contest was Kelly Williams. Below: Winners in the local Voice of Democracy contest were T. Beverage, 1st, S. Vance, 3rd, and M. Hogan, 2nd.

Students Travel Widely To

The joy of pressure and the desire for advancement are two attributes of everyday competitions. Striving to be the best at what we do, no matter how great the obstacles, composes a first-rate group.

An all-expense paid trip to New York City is the local prize in the United Nations Pilgrimage for Youth Contest held annually. The winner is selected by having the highest test score. At near right is Barbara Starks, this year's winner.

Each year WVU sponsors a writing contest in which students submit work they have done. They are then judged and ten are selected in each category to compete in the state finals. At far right, Rhonda Hammons and Candy Harper design an ad at WVU.

State semifinalists in WVU's writing contest were Candy Harper, advertising, Rhonda Hammons, advertising, and Katie Crickenberger, advertising and newswriting.

Runner-up in the Outstanding Journalist competition sponsored by the WV Scholastic Press Association was John Dean, Editor of "The Smoke Signal".

Compete In Variety Of Contests

A man should never be ashamed to say he has been in the wrong, which is but saying in other words that he is wiser today than he was yesterday.—Pope

The "Kwiz Kids"—Ed Bauman, Greg Friel and Tony Beverage—made their first appearance on WDBJ-TV's Classroom Kwiz. With two members returning from last year's undefeated team, they had high hopes of retiring undefeated once again. They lost on their first show. Then, the team traveled to Bluefield to compete on WHIS-TV's Quiz Bowl. Although they defeated Princeton 200-195, they weren't allowed to return because their score wasn't high enough. The team glowed through the "thrill of victory" and frowned through "the agony of defeat."

A Week's Work

The week of the prom arrived with a bang. The class of '80 was in charge with a huge task of turning the gym into a Tropical Paradise. The original 12 foot volcano was completely assembled once, disassembled twice and finally half of it became a fountain. Things were going well until the morning before the big night. When the juniors stepped into the gym, they discovered that every piece or paper that was tightly strung on Thursday evening was now lying limply on the floor. The damp rain had caused tape to come undone. But that didn't stop them. They proceeded to get the ceiling repaired and in one hour, 5th period on Friday, set up the cafeteria and all the tables in the gym. Pineapples, palm trees, coconuts, tropical birds, a watermelon boat teeming with tropical fruit and an enticing show case all led to a fun-filled event.

Upper far left: Juniors Joyce Hamrick, Anita Oliver and Frankie Cutlip take a break beside the fountain. Lower left corner: Helping with the preliminary decorations are Kim Layman and Angela Dunbrack. Left center: Crepe paper is one of the most important parts of prom decorating—just ask any Junior! Sharon Beverage carefully cuts leaves for the palm trees. Top: These are two views of the finished product taken before the guests arrived. Above left: Junior guys hang crepe paper across wires to form the ceiling. Above: Bob Simmons secures the ceiling. Left: The thatched roof of a hut gets a final adjustment from Jeff Pritt.

Brings Night Of Tropical Fun

Upper Left: Rodney Bennett freezes with one of his funky dances long enough to catch the photographers attention. Upper Center: The fountain amuses Wayne Cassell and his date, Melanie Rose. Wayne reaches for a hand full of water while Melanie supports him. Upper right: Terri Cutlip, Jeff Burns and Frankie Cutlip gather to talk about their plans for after the prom. Lower left: Mrs. McCartney sits down to relax and enjoy some of the refreshments in the cafeteria while she plays hostess and serves punch to everyone. Lower right: Fast in action is the band singing away.

The moment was here. A select group of performers provided the loud and disco oriented music. Dressed in satin pants, Jameskin Corgrin appeared to be popular as well as striking. The students and their guests were a first-rate group Mr. Vance, principal, later said.

Three Members Win In Regionals

Three placed in the Future Business Leaders of America regional Conference held at Concord College. They were Lola Slayton (poster contest), Pam Sizemore (accounting), and Jane Cassell (public speaking).

Two Attend Junior Miss Pageant

Two seniors attended the Regional Junior Miss Pageant in Lewisburg. They were Karen Valencia (Left) and Jane Cassell (Right).

Students Achieve Honors In Activities

Those who say it can't be done are usually interrupted by others doing it.

Class. You can't beg, borrow or steal it. It isn't the money you have or the company you keep. Class isn't how you speak, hold your glass or where you go for dinner. It either is or it isn't.

Consider the young ladies and gentlemen on the following pages. They reigned supreme from the time they first graced the halls in September. Because they were a quieter group than their predecessors doesn't mean they had any less enthusiasm. And though they were far from perfect, it seems they were first in a lot of ways. Their freshman picnic, the trip to Lakeside and attempting to hold graduation exercises outside were a few of the activities this class with class originated. They were among the few who managed to make the Christmas and Spring dances into money-making ventures instead of the usual "pain in the neck." And who else could succeed in capturing the mood of the evening so strikingly with the Homecoming floats that no other class would do?

Vintage Years For Seniors

These last four years have been vintage years for the seniors, and such discussion brings to mind some of the extraordinary members of this class. For your consideration remember that this class had an undefeated basketball team as freshmen, and outstanding artist in Carol Smith, an exceptional female athlete in Teresa McCoy, a state recognized journalist in John Dean, a Whiz Kid in Ed Bauman, an outstanding leader in Jane Cassell, an unsurpassed student in Felicia Sharp, a superb track star in Tim Galford, a number of unforgettable football and basketball players, and finally two members who devoted much time and energy to school organizations—Katie Crickenberger and Lola Slayton.

Tough Schedule Leaves

Pocahontas County came ahead with a winning season this year, having a record of 6-4, even though it was probably the toughest schedule played in years. All four Warrior losses were this year's AA play-off champs.

The win against Nicholas started the team out the right way. The game against Webster was our finest offensive effort with Keith Pondexter, senior, having 143 yards.

The first loss was with West, but Mark Kinder, senior, showed a great defensive side for Pocahontas.

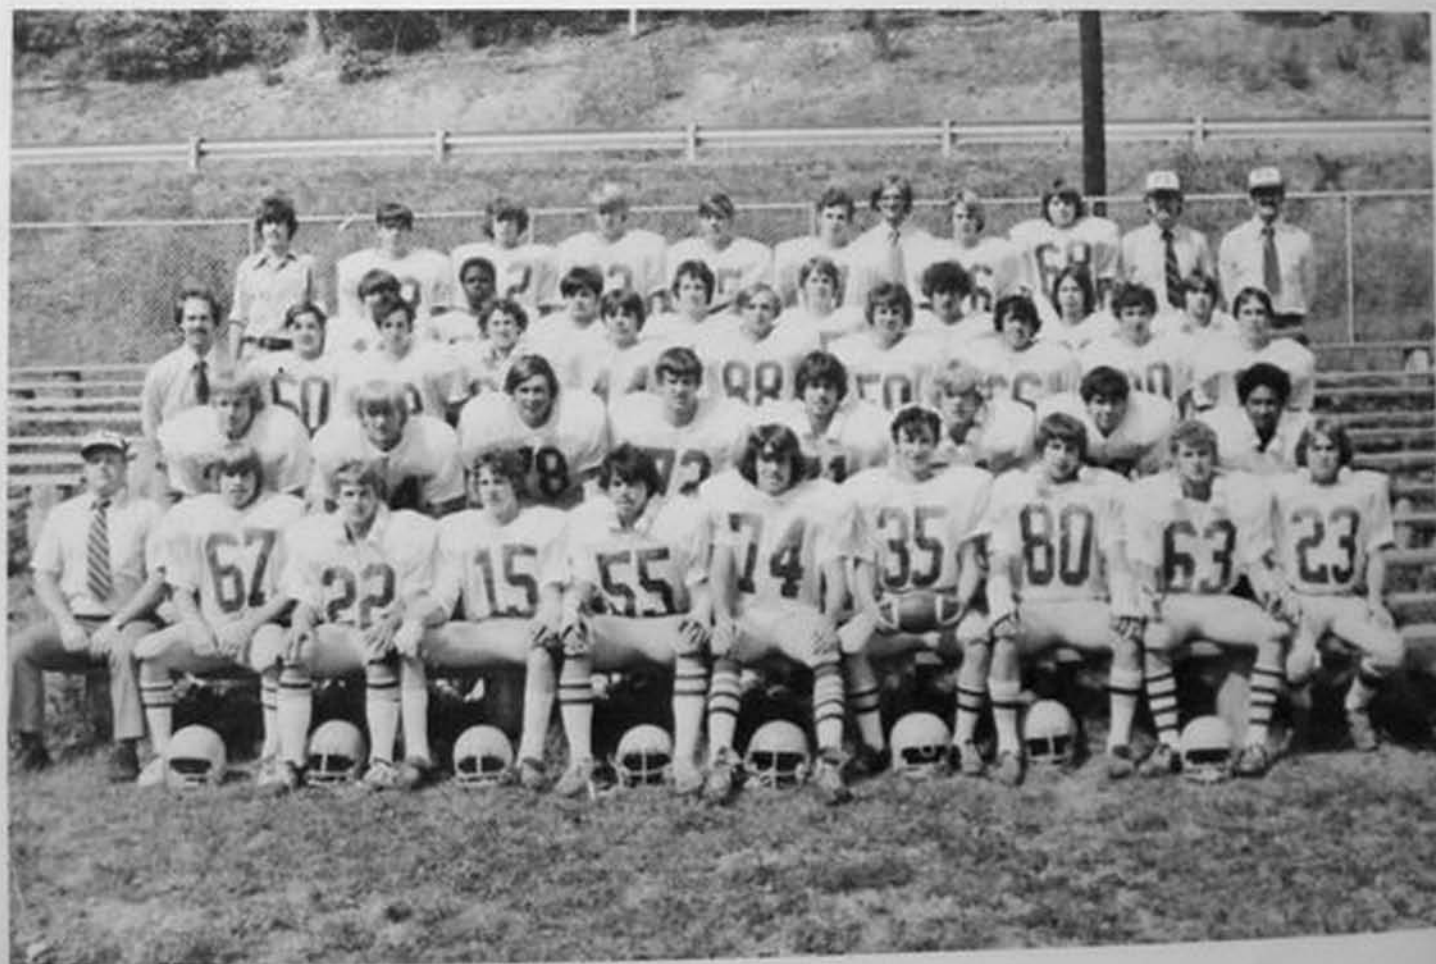

The first few seconds of the Poca (last year's state champ) game proved to be exciting, but the game gave the Warrior's a second loss.

The game with Man (the second-ranked in the state was the third loss, although statistically the game belonged to the Warriors.

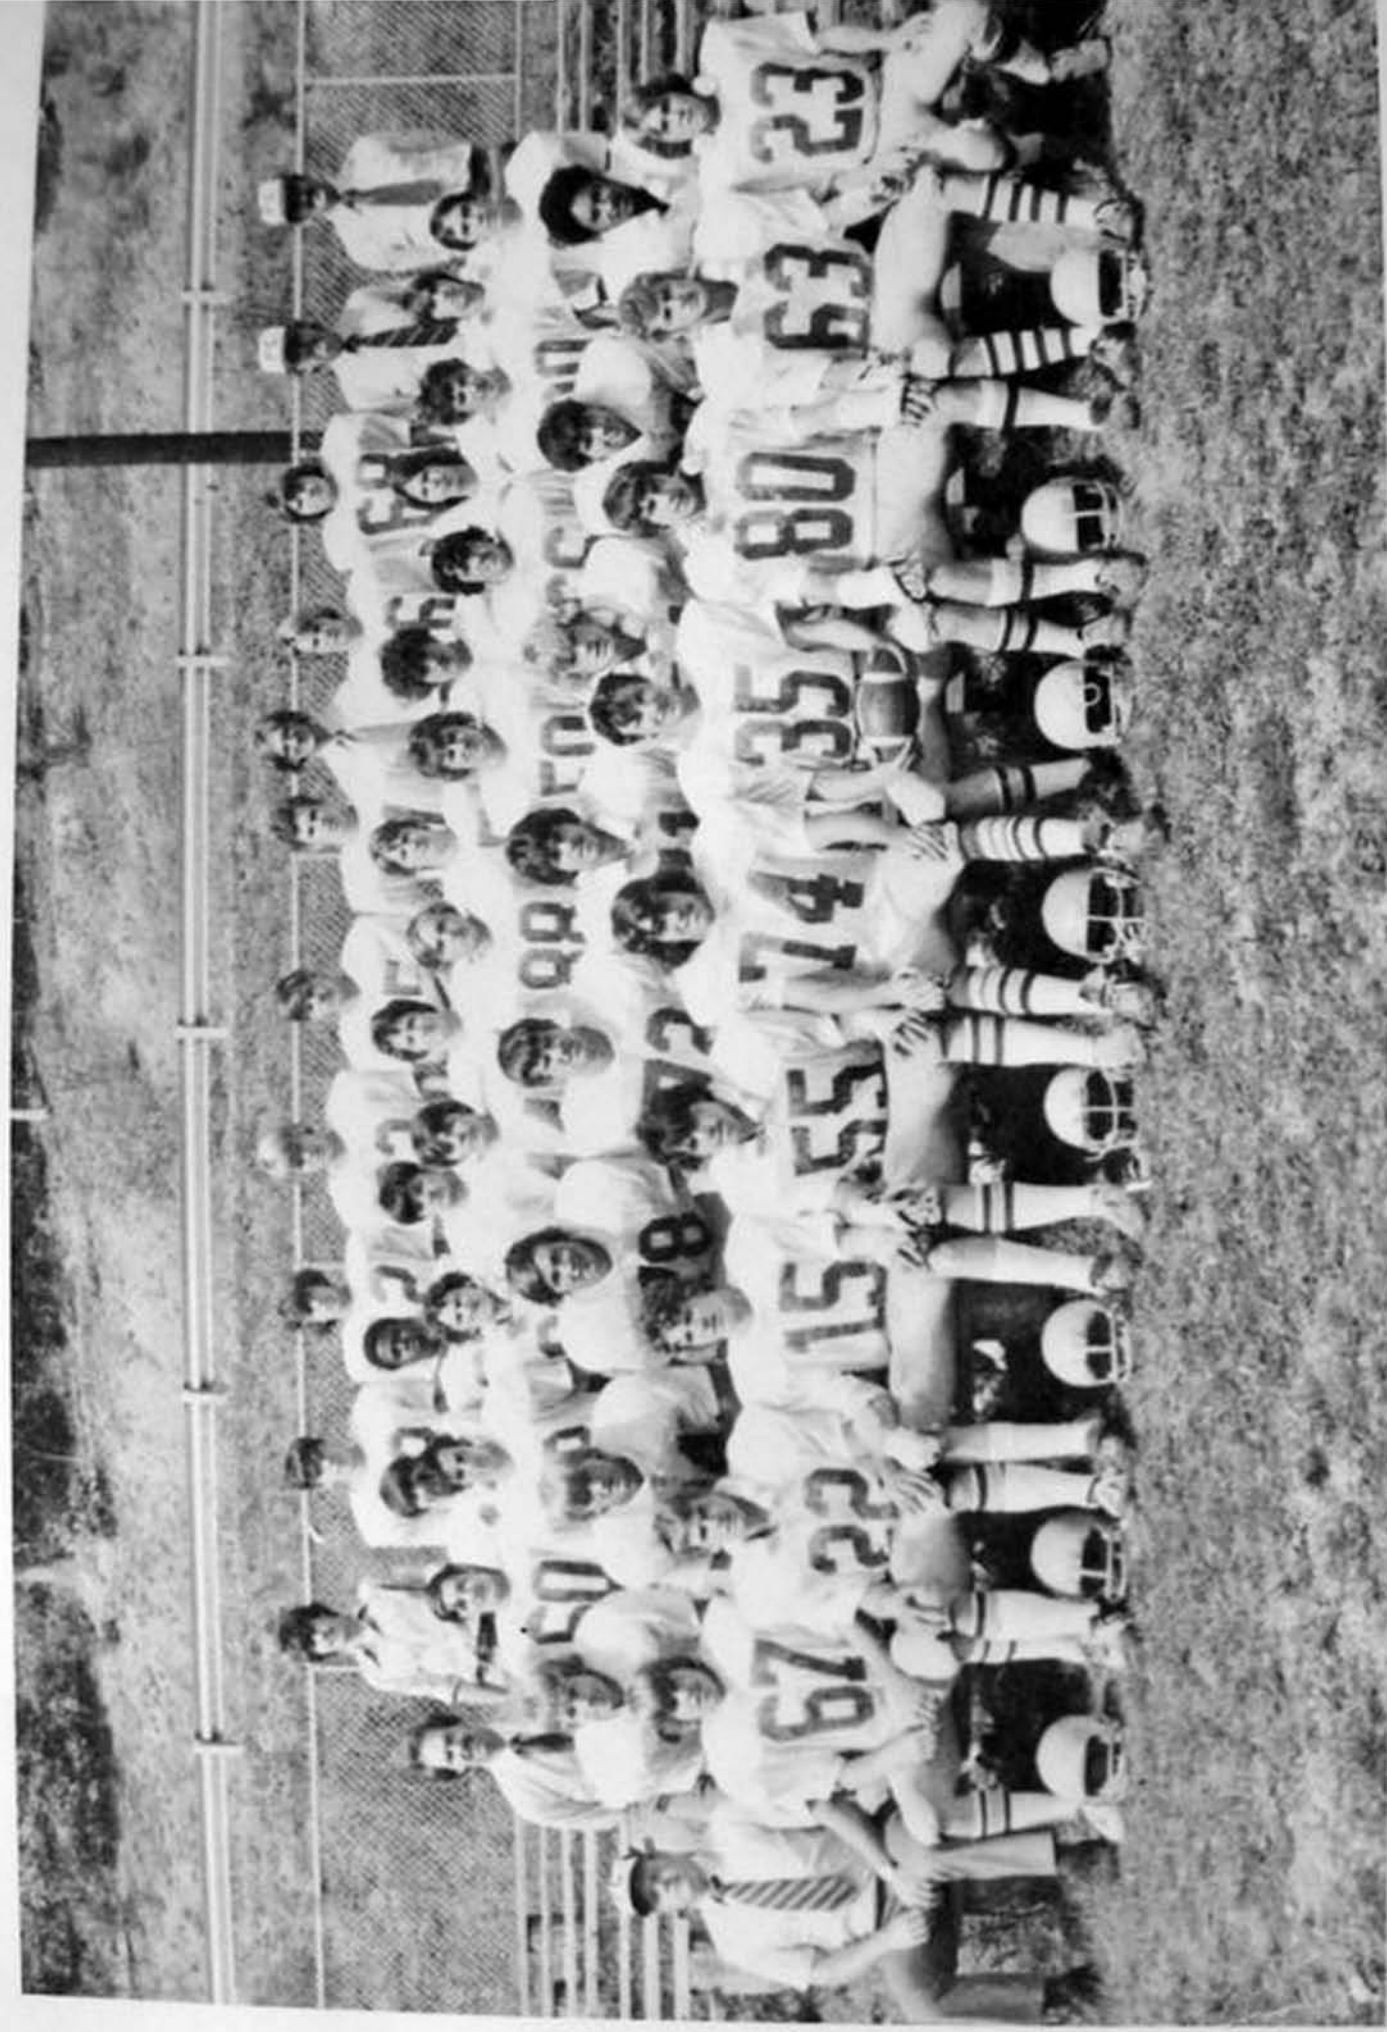

Homecoming game was the final loss against Preston.

Freshmen Give Outstanding Effort

The 1979 Pocahontas County Freshmen Football team finished with a record of 1 win, 4 losses, and 2 ties. The team gave outstanding efforts in defeating Bath County and tying both Rickwood and Elkins. Defeats were suffered at the hands of White Sulphur, Webster County, Nicholas County, and Timberidge. Freshmen players Ron Simmons, Brett Withers, Steve Johnson, Joe Roy and John Pritt were singled out by Coach Sheets for their hard work and dedication.

Girls Astonish Everyone With

The girl's basketball team surprised everyone by winning their first game of the season while playing at the sectional tournament in Webster County. They fell to defeat however in the second round of games. Teresa McCoy, senior, and Melanie Rose, junior, were the outstanding players of the game and were named All Tournament Team.

Undefeated team is first

The Junior Varsity team finished their season with a 73-63 victory over Tucker, March 2, 1979. This gave the J.V.'s a perfect 16-0 season, the first time a team has gone undefeated in basketball at P.C.H.S.

Balanced scoring and strong defense with a full court press and good rebounding were the factors that led the team to success.

Hustle was a factor, too. At least five times this year the J.V.'s were behind at the half but came back 10 or 15 points.

This team should provide the varsity with a lot of talent for the next couple of years. The only other close record was two years ago when the J.V.'s were 16-1.

Coach Bob Welder, forestry teacher, (right) did a tremendous job with this team. P.C.H.S., however, is losing M. Welder this year since he plans to move to an elementary school position.

Basketball Coach Resigns

Coach Richard Groseclose has been a golf, freshmen football and varsity basketball coach. He coached golf for three years here at P.C.H.S. and freshman football one year. He's been a basketball coach for ten years, three in Ohio and seven here at P.C.H.S. Coaching here was his reason for leaving Ohio. He likes being a basketball coach because basketball is his favorite sport; also because in basketball "there's no ties, you either win or lose." His best record was last year, 1978, the record being 14-5. His record for his entire coaching time here is 87-57. His favorite memories are winning the Hampshire County Invitational in '78 and beating Tucker County this year. Coaching took long hours and lots of dedication. He said he enjoyed the relationships with the boys and he hated losing and the seniors leaving. When asked why he wasn't going to coach anymore, he answered, "I want more time with my family. I really enjoyed coaching, but it was time to take time for different pursuits."

Weather Keeps Season

Cold weather and a muddy track got the track season off to a slow start for both the boys' and girls' teams. They practiced together in the gym and halls until it was warm enough to run outside. The girls' team, though young (mostly freshmen) and inexperienced, managed to claim some individual victories towards the end of the season. Coach Fedak, the fourth new coach in as many years, will not be back for the 1980 season. Hopefully the girls will be though, better for their experience of the spring of '79.

Bottom left, reaching for that extra inch in the broad-jump is Brenda Adams. She and teammate Stephanie Phillips watch as Coach Fedak records scores, below. The familiar Nicholas County scoreboard towers in the background; familiar as the team traveled here for every meet. Left, Coach Fedak helps out with the measuring at the broad-jump pit. Opposite page, clockwise from top left, Amber Ralston contemplates the shot put while waiting for her turn. Relaxing in the grass before their events are Linda Adams, Amber Ralston, Karen Collins and Charma Roy. A perfect hand-off is executed between Cindy Mullens and Brenda Adams - well, almost perfect. Charma Roy shows her form in the hurdles.

From Running Start

"Swift things are beautiful:
Swallows and deer,
And lightning that falls
Bright-veined and clear,
Rivers and meteors,
Wind in the wheat,
The strong-withered horse,
The runners sure feet."
-Elizabeth Coatsworth

SIX SENIOR TRACKMEN COMPETE IN STATE MEET

Tim Galford (880 yard dash), Craig Doss, Garry Cutlip, Kevin Shaw, and Phil Hill (880 relay) and Ronnie Sharp (discus) all placed in the Regional Track Meet held in May at the Nicholas County High Stadium in Summersville. They then went on to compete in the state finals held at Marshall University in Huntington, W.Va. Tim came home with a third place trophy from this event.

Vocational Director To Retire This Year

Mr. David Smith is retiring after 39 years in the county school system. Beginning in 1940, he taught Agricultural Mechanics at Green Bank High School for 30 years before coming to PCHS. He has been the vocational director here since 1970.

When asked what he was going to do in his free time after he retires, he said, "Hunt, fish, work on my farm, travel some, and rest a lot."

The students of PCHS will miss Mr. Smith and wish him much happiness in his years of retirement.

Specialized Programs Offered

The English Department began a program of phasing three years ago. Phase one is basic study, phase two is general study, while phase three is designed for those students who are going to college. The courses are taught as nine weeks units with each unit taught by a different teacher.

A new course offering added to the schedule this year was a Phase I course in Reading. The course was designed to give special assistance to those students who are having a particular difficulty with reading skills. The department also offered such varied classes as Folklore, Speech, Mythology, Creative Writing, Grammar, etc.

In Languages Departments

French I and II and Latin II were offered this year. Father Lombard taught the Latin course to a very small group who can say that they were the last Latin students at PCHS. The Latin program will not be continued next year.

Languages programs are an integral part of any high school language curriculum because two units of foreign language are required for admission into any West Virginia college or university.

The French classroom is well-equipped for instructional purposes. There are individual sound booths for student use as well as space for class meetings. Latin, however, was taught in the art room because there was not an additional classroom not in use at this time. Thus, a lack of classroom space was felt again at PCHS.

Student Project Wins Honors

The PCHS Social Studies Department has been receiving a lot of state recognition in the last two years for its origination and development of a Future Studies curriculum for use in high schools. Other schools in the state have begun to adopt this program.

The department itself runs on a phased system much as the English Department does, with courses being offered in nine weeks units such as Future Studies, Criminal Justice, Law, Sociology, etc.

At State Science Fair

Left: Denise Seldomridge, Teresa Scott, and Nina Adkins discuss the court case and as the jury try to come to some conclusion. Below: Lecture is not always exciting. Bottom: Mr. Gherke offers a helping hand to Kim Dean and Kim Friel during small group work in class.

Newspaper Wins Top Awards

The eleven members of the journalism class found they had an awesome job at the beginning of the year. These eleven people had to produce a 200 page yearbook, eight editions of the newspaper, a special senior newspaper of 28 pages, and raise approximately $8,000 to finance all these activities. By the end of the year they had accumulated a number of individual and group awards for their efforts. The newspaper received two state awards from the United High School Press Association—one for the best news writing in state, and the other was third place for best all-round newspaper. Katie Crickenberger, Rhonda Hammons and Candy Harper were selected as state semi-finalists in the WVU writing contests. John Dean was runner-up to the state winner of the W.Va. Scholastic Press Association Outstanding Journalist. It seemed as though all the hard work and sacrifice had paid off.

Top: Five journalism students are working to complete a final rush deadline. They are Teresa Scott, Vicki Bennett, Kelly Williams, Penny Beck and Nina Adkins. Since the last bunch of pictures for two year-book sections didn't arrive until the week before school was out, there was a lot of frantic activity in those last two weeks. The seniors, however, got to leave early and avoided much of the rush. Left: Katie Crickenberger, business manager of The Smoke Signal and The Warrior, checks a layout for mistakes. Katie's job involved collecting, counting and recording appropriately the thousands of dollars collected by the class this year. Above: Lori Albee, yearbook editor, pauses for the camera.

Mathematics Is Infamous Subject

"Math? Yuck."

Perhaps the hardest job of the math teacher is changing the student's attitudes to what is infamous as one of the most hated subjects of all time.

Two units of math are required for students to graduate, beginning with the class of '82. For those who do enjoy math, the department offers a variety of courses. These include General Math, Geometry, Algebra I, II, and III, and Trigonometry.

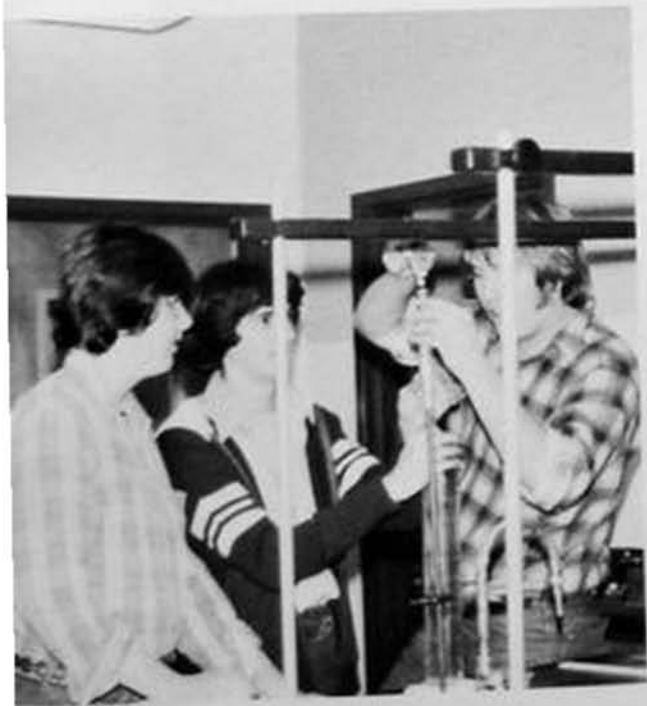

Far left, Jim Dolan takes a break from Mrs. Ivine's Trig class to contemplate the photographer. Behind him is a new solution to an old proverb. Left, New to the school system, Mrs. Karen Hinkle explains a problem on the board to her students. Far lower left, Mr. Charles McElwee watches Willie Shank in action. Mr. McElwee recently retired from the position of Federal Coordinator in the county, his occupation since 1972. He taught science and biology for many years and continues to substitute teach. Lower left, Mr. Tim McCartney helps Jeff Taylor and Jeff Burns with their geometry and answers a question from Brenda Ryder below.

Mathematics: a science that deals with the relationship and symbolism of numbers and magnitudes and that includes quantitative operations and the solution of quantitative problems.
Webster's Dictionary

Desire To Be Top-Rate Makes

Science. It intrigues some and with the desire to explore the unknown, many students take more than one science class needed to graduate. The lab work, which ranges from the dissection of a frog in BSCS Biology to measuring sound waves in Physics, interest some more than chemical equations, bone structure and scientific theories do. The Advanced Science class was made up of four nine-week grading periods in which Mr. Harold Crist taught Astronomy and Meteorology and Mrs. Pam Sharpes taught Cat Anatomy and Ecology. In September, Dr. E. Meade McNeill, former Professor of Biology at Concord College, presented the Biology Department with a number of books in memory of his sister, Madaline McNeill. Then in May Dr. McNeill presented the Science Department with a set of National Geographic magazines from 1936-1969.

Music And Science Enjoyable

A variety of music wafted from the band room that ranged from the sounds of the fabulous 50's to disco, rock, jazz and classical concert music. For the simple unequaled enjoyment of music, aspiring guitar players, band members and many others spent hours upon hours practicing and performing at school functions, community affairs and state competitions. The Music Dept. offered Guitar class, Music Listening, Instrumental, Pep Band, Concert and Marching Band, plus extra-curricular activities. The Pops Group sang at many private affairs and competed at WV Tech in the spring. The Marching Band traveled and performed at all football games and at the Marlinton Christmas parade and Christmas Concert. The Concert Band received a rating of excellent at the Clarksburg Band Festival. The year's activities ended with the Spring Extravaganza, a night filled with music by the Band, Pops Group and numerous skits.

Clockwise from far left: 1. Mr. Tracy explains the use of a generator. 2. Doug Vandevander, Jerry Wilfong, Brenda Kinnison, Stephanie Hammons, Terry Hyden and Teresa Shearer work in the science lab on an experiment. 3. The woodwind section of the band performs at a concert. 4. Strumming the guitar are Dean Becker and Ken Underwood, who are practicing in Guitar class. 5. "Jammin' down on some disco music are Bobby Williams, sophomore, and Ronnie Hall, junior. 6. This is one of the telescopes viewed by the Advanced Science and Physics classes at the National Radio Astronomy Observatory (NRAO). Also included on the tour was a look at the complex computer system. Mr. Wally Oref, staff employee, and Mr. Harold Crist, science teacher, conducted the tour of the facility. 7. Measuring sound waves in a physics lab experiment are Bobby Gibb, Greg Cochran and Jeff Jackson, seniors.

PE, Art And Driving

The primary objective of schools is to prepare students to deal with life by offering courses designed to instill necessary life skills. Physical education, driver education and art education offer the student the chance to learn competence in areas that will be beneficial for many years to come.

Provide Lifetime Skills

The art department, headed by Mrs. Miriam VanNostran, again sponsored an art show for the public that was held in the Methodist Church in Marlinton in the spring. Art awards were given as money prizes in several categories such as best clown, best West Virginia landscape, and best stitchery. Thus, students discovered that hard work does pay off sometimes, literally!

But sometimes, all that expended energy and devoted study leads only to the realization that more is still needed. It is a hard lesson to learn, but many driver education students must try again and again to pass written and driving exams given by the state police.

Study Centers Provided

The learning center and library at PCHS are designed to help the students extend their knowledge in different areas. Cassettes and audio visual equipment are used by the students in coordination with their studies. The library is excellent as a place to find useful information or a quiet place to study.

Nurses Work At Hospitals

The nurses assistant class learns the basic fundamentals of nursing procedures through actual working situations in the classroom. During the second semester, the class travels to Poca-hontas Memorial and Den-mar State Hospitals to put to use what they have learned during the year.

Special Luncheon Served

The Special Education students were a jump ahead of the 1980 Olympics with their participation in the 1978-79 Special Olympics. As well as the spring track and field events, they also joined in on the skiing and ice-skating at Canaan Valley. Later in the year a faculty luncheon was held at which the students served. Mrs. Cora Lee Wyatt, a guest, said that "everything was delicious!"

Class Provides Drafting Skills

Left: Doug Morrison concentrates as he makes some very precise calculations for a house design. Below: Irene White and Stephany Phillips work at specially designed drafting tables.

One of the classes provided by the Vocational Department is Drafting. It is offered as beginning drafting one year, and then students may sign into advanced drafting the next year. They learn to do three-dimensional drawings and then do special projects such as a cabin design.

Drafting is offered only to upperclassmen as a class to prepare them for a possible career in this area. Mr. Jeurgen Sumph is the teacher.

Career Certificates Given

Right - Outside experience was obtained by the electricity classes through actual wiring of houses. Paul Mace, Leroy Evans, Larry Roop, and Gary Mamak are wiring an octagon box in the Electricity II class. Below - An important part of the Vocational Mechanics classes is to give the students experience in working in the shop. Vanice Lusk is preparing to weld a snowplow blade in the shop. Below Right - Ricky McCarty, Curtis Wade, and Tony Kelly check a manual before attempting to adjust their equipment electronically. In this class students learn how to repair radios, televisions, and other electrical equipment.

The vocational department at PCHS has been set up to provide its students with an opportunity to get some training in a marketable skill. Any person who completes a block class will receive a certificate. This certificate states that the student has completed a course of study with hands-on experience in their chosen vocational area. Potential employers will recognize these certificates and often give special consideration to the person who has it. Several block classes were offered to the students this year including: clerical, secretarial, home economics, nursing, drafting, electricity, carpentry, welding and forestry.

On Job Experience Provided

When school began the carpentry class began an extra section to the Forestry Building. The 40X80 building will accommodate the Carpentry Class, Forestry, and Driver's Education next year. Samuel Taylor, teacher, says there is plenty more work to be done but the boys have gotten a great deal of experience.

Sewing, Cooking, Typing

Vocational home economics is for everyone—and that includes men, too! Today's man often finds himself with a working wife who expects him to help with household chores. Thus, male enrollment in traditionally all-female classes is on the increase. They learn skills that range from canning home produce to the art of sizing patterns to fit perfectly. Once this year each student had to make a toy that a child could play with. They also studied a section on nutrition which included table setting, manners and menu planning.

Essential business skills such as filing, typing, bookkeeping and shorthand are offered in the clerical classes taught in the vocational department. Ideally, any student who completes these business courses will graduate with the ability to begin careers as clerk-typists, secretaries or bookkeepers, which are now in demand on the job market.

Goodbye To The 70's

The year '79. It can be thought of as the end of a decade or as the beginning of another. To many it was a beginning . . . for the children of the Eighties . . .

NHS Inducts New Members

"Scholarship, leadership, service and character."

These are the characteristics by which members of the National Honor Society are chosen. Eighteen new members were selected during May to represent this elite group of students. The 15 juniors and three seniors were inducted with a formal ceremony held near the end of the month. Parts were said by each of the old members and candles were lit representing the four principles of the society. Refreshments were served immediately following the program.

Historical Society

The Historical Society is sponsored by Mr. Quentin Stewart and is a club of ten members. They sponsored an activity night to raise money and sponsored a club activity to identify historical grave markers.

Student Council Buys Mats

The Student Council is composed of elected representatives from each class as well as the club's president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer which are elected from the student body at large.

Several open meetings were held this year to get feedback from the student body. In one meeting tempers flared as students accused their representatives of "doing nothing."

The Student Council completed a number of projects which included buying door mats for the lobby, holding a shopping spree, changing the lunch ticket program to a token system, and exchanging council members with Jefferson and Webster High Schools.

Club Presents Christmas Play

The Drama Club, new at PCHS this year and sponsored by Mrs. Glenda VanReenen and Mrs. Kyle McCartney, attracted a large number of enthusiastic would-be actors and stage hands. The group presented a Christmas play called "Charlie Brown's Christmas" to all of the grade schools in the county as well as to the high school and public. Plans were underway to present a play again in the spring, but the club later encountered obstacles in scheduling that precluded any production.

At left are Donna Dilley and Katie Crickenberger as two of Charlie Brown's buddies in the play.

One Way Club Formed

If one observes a really happy man you will find that he is building a boat, playing a symphony, or in some other way is very busy. He will not be searching for happiness or striving for it as if it were some nebulous thing. To find true happiness we must focus outside ourselves, and for many that focus is upon God. Thus the One Way Club was formed as a means for students to incorporate God into their school lives.

Committee Determines Prom Design

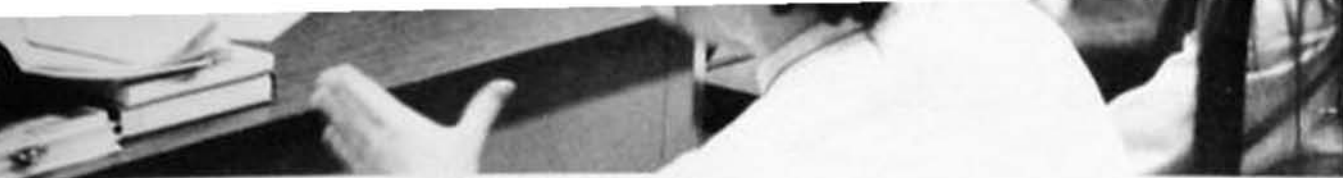

The Prom Committee is made up of juniors who pick the theme and decorations, send invitations, plan the refreshments and later decorate the gym. These students volunteer early in the year and begin working in February for a May prom.

Mrs. Baldwin, Meg Crickenberger, Kelly Williams, and Barbie Kisner served at the prom.

Spirit Club Forms Guidelines

The Pep club changed its name to the Spirit Club. Members now had to earn and maintain a number of points to join and remain members.

Vera Wade, Meg Crickenberger and Barbie Kisner seem to be expressing their interest in the Spirit Club at a meeting with their sponsor, Mrs. Flegel.

Cheerleaders Constant Fans

Brenda Kinnison, Patricia Kellison, Carol McNeill and Laura Howell, (Left to Right), were J.V. cheerleaders representing PCHS for 1978-79.

Being a fan or supporter of a team just seems to come naturally when the team is winning. But when times are bad and the team is down, fans seem to evaporate as water does on a hot day. Luckily, some people can always be counted on to provide that word of encouragement and spirit when it is needed. They are our cheerleaders. Often taken for granted, they are usually some of the school's most active students.

Christine Dulaney, Sara Oliver, Lori Wilfong (front), Kim Dean, Robin Hilleary and Margaret Mitchell, (back), are Freshman Cheerleaders posing in picture.

Pops Group Goes To WVIT

The Pops Group attended the rating conference at the West Virginia Institute of Technology for the second year in a row, where they received a rating of excellent for their singing and choreography. The members enjoyed the trip to WVIT not only for the performance, but because it also meant missing a little school.

Other activities included performances for local groups, at the Huttonsville Correctional Center and for patients at the Denmar State Hospital.

All-State Band auditions give the budding instrumentalist a chance to prove himself. Players are rated according to their abilities on scales and solos by their tone quality, rhythm, intonation and other factors. Those scoring high enough are placed in the All Area Bands, which perform at Clarksburg. Exceptionally high scores enable a performer to be in the All-State Band, of which we had no members for the year.

Corps Lends Color To Band

Halftime activities wouldn't be half as interesting without the majorettes' performance with the band. But while the audience can sit back and enjoy the entertainment, they probably don't realize what hard work and planning went into the routine. Part of the requirements for being a majorette are to attend a summer training camp. This year the majorettes went to Bluefield State College for a week of instruction and competition. Friday found them as winners in the novelty division. For their dance to the Star Wars theme they were named first runners-up in the novelty contest. The special silver iridescent costumes used in the routine were made by Mrs. Jean Harper, head majorette Candy Harper's mother.

Band Gets Excellent Rating

The band's annual excursion to the Clarksburg Band Festival seemed doomed to failure as the buses neared Clarksburg. Bus I got stuck in the mud while making a U-turn. Everyone began wondering whether they would reach the audition on time. When it became evident that the tow truck would never get there in time, the entire band loaded on Bus II and headed for the audition. The band arrived punctually, if a bit cramped, and received a rating of 2 or 'excellent' for its performance.

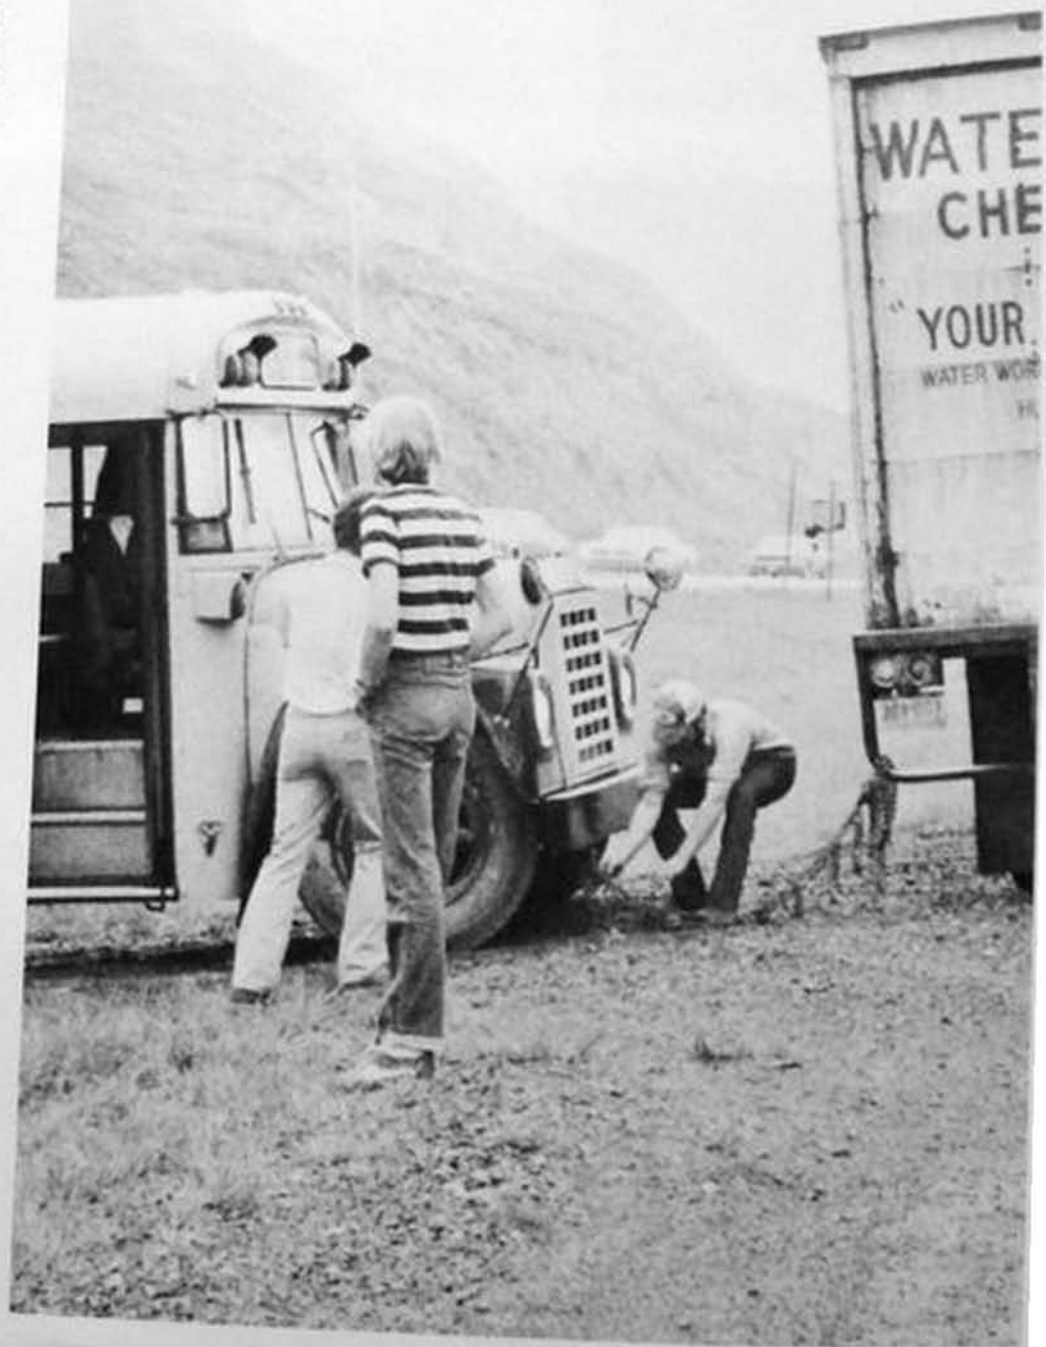

Below, Students watch as attempts to pull out the stranded bus fail. The back end was grounded, leaving the rear wheels useless. Right, A "good Samaritan" lends his assistance, but to no avail. Lower left, Rejetta Cassell and Amy Vreble sneak a look as the band stops during the parade through the streets of downtown Clarksburg. The band must attend the Clarksburg festival annually to be rated or it cannot travel to any events outside of the county the following year. The 1979 rating numbers were Jederman, Heritage Overture and Drammatico.

Band Entertains With

Each year when the trauma and sweat of the Clarksburg band festival is over, the band members find time to sit back, relax and begin to "let their hair down" while planning the annual Spring Extravaganza.

This year's show featured novelties such as a pantomime of the "Village People", disco dancing, ballet, a stand-up comedian, Raggy-Ann and Andy, a reporter who'd do anything for a story, trip to the local beauty shop, PCHS' own rock group, a gypsy dance, Dolly Parton, Roseanna Roseanna Dana, skits, and of course the special ending when the Seniors took off their pants!—What?

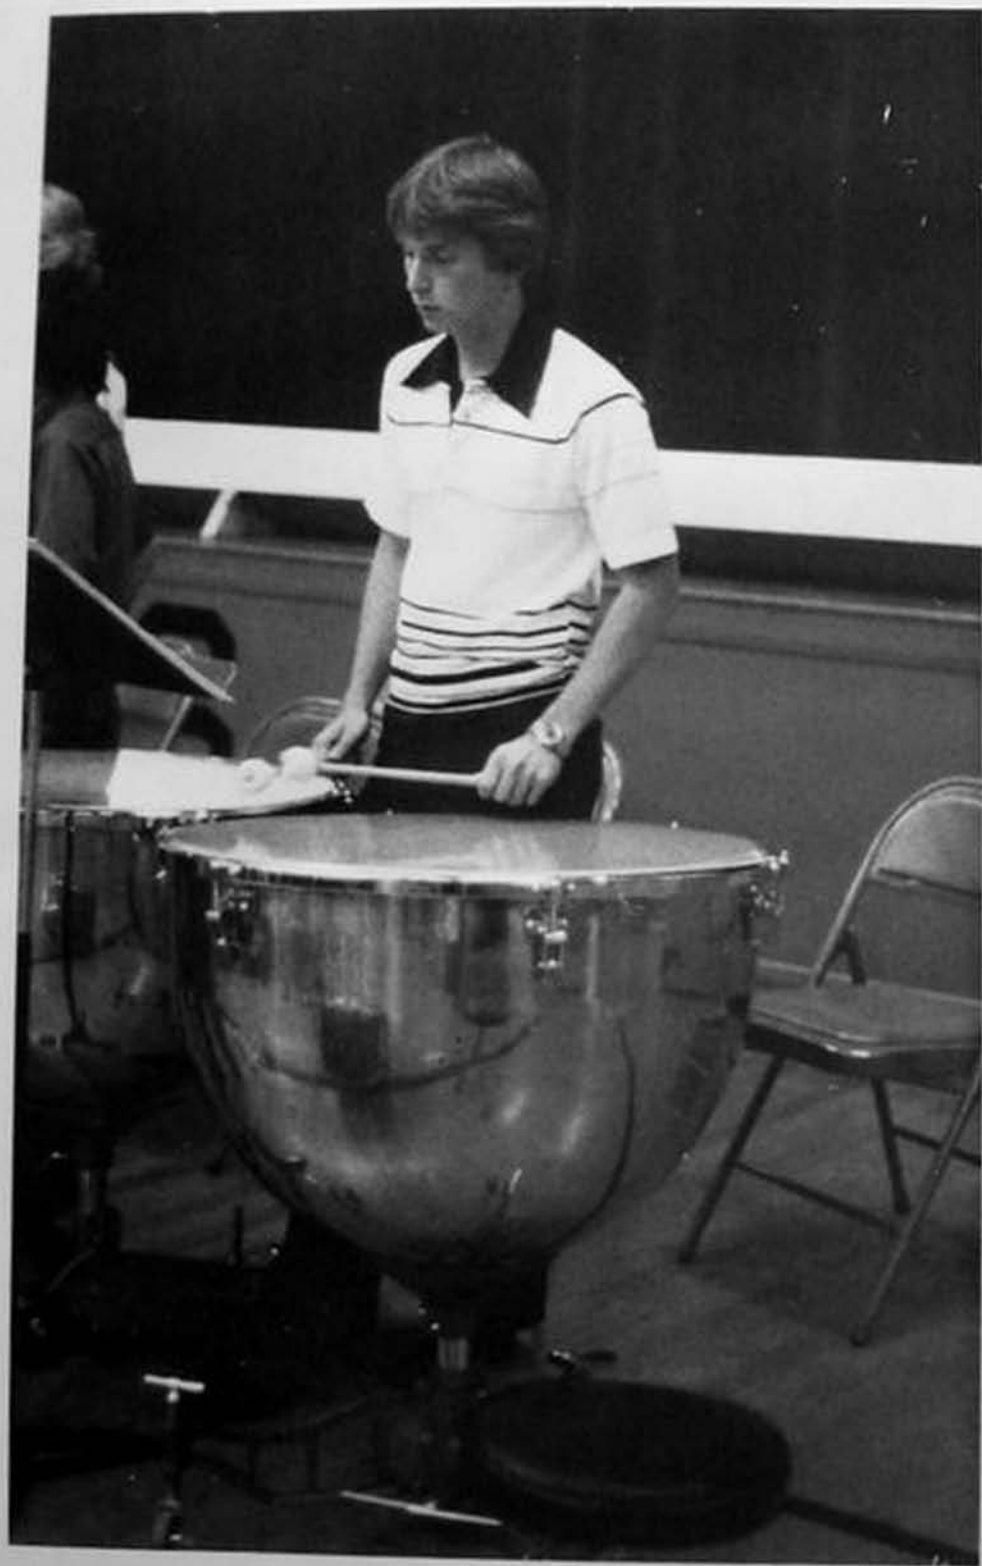

At right: Lisa VanReenan and Tish Cochran, freshmen, demonstrate what a beauty treatment at a salon and the ensuing conversation are really like.

Over One Hundred Awards

The annual Awards Day Ceremony was held May 29 in the gymnasium with Mr. Kenneth Vance, principal, and Mr. David Smith, vocational director, presiding over the presentation of awards. Approximately 135 awards were presented to students for outstanding academic or vocational achievement, as well as awards for service and character. In addition, several scholarship awards were given to graduating seniors.

Seniors Enjoy Day At Lakeside Park

The traditional senior week was celebrated with a special luncheon at school for seniors, the annual Awards Day ceremony, graduation practice, and the most exciting of all—a day at Lakeside Amusement Park near Roanoke, Virginia. Senior sponsors accompanied the group on a school bus on that chilly Thursday. But poor weather didn't prevent anyone from having lots of fun.

Outside Graduation Ceremony

The journey of a thousand miles begins with one step, and to most high school students that one giant step is graduation. It is a day anticipated by every freshman, sophomore, junior and senior, but in the end it is met with mixed emotions. Tears flow, smiles abound, and many breathe a sigh of relief. For everyone it is a time of congratulation. (I'm proud of you." "We made it!") For the seniors of 1979 the Saturday of June 2, 1979, marked the beginning of the journey.

Cancelled Because Of Rain

Graduation activities were originally scheduled to be held outside on the athletic field, but were cancelled because of impending rain. Spirits, however, were not dampened as can be seen, opposite, by seniors' expressions. Shown are Mark Kinder, Mike Kinnison, Randall Lewis, Teresa Rose and Sandy McMillion. Below top left: Another group of exuberant seniors are Tim Stewart, Bruce Taylor, Amy Vrable, and Dewitt Thompson. Top right: Those participating in the program were (from left) Mr. David Smith, vocational director; Dr. Joseph Gluck, speaker; Mr. Glen Wade, assistant principal; Mr. Ernie Shaw, Board of Education member; Mr. Kenneth Vance, principal, and Dr. James Lannan, superintendent of schools. Lower left: Dr. Joseph C. Gluck, Dean of Student Educational Services at West Virginia University, was the featured speaker. He cautioned students that ten years from today they will want to be able to pause and look at the positive things they have done, rather than wondering exactling WHAT they have done! Lower right: Senior Jill Abdella happily enters the gymnasium for the graduation exercises.

Below: Elaine Friel and Shirley Carpenter listen to the Huttonsville Drug Team explain the perils of drug use.

Most editors find something inspired or witty to close the book with. My only inspiration was Mrs. Wigal, my ever-patient advisor, and even she gave up on me long ago. She also vetoed everything I thought was witty. I guess I'll just say thanks to everyone who lent a hand, and that I'd do it again on only one condition . . . I never have to type those four words again in my life—A Touch Of Class.
